DETAILED ACTION

In response the after final amendment received 5-12-2004

Revision of application status

The Final status of application 09/820,561 is hereby removed due to the discovery of prior art, which is not currently present of the record though deemed applicable to the claimed invention. Accordingly the indication of previously allowable subject matter is hereby withdrawn unless so restated in this action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 2-4, 6-8, and 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Deering (US 6,313,838).

Deering teaches a method and apparatus for estimating the rendering times for three-dimensional graphics (312) and alter the rendering parameters such as detail and the number of samples per pixel (thereby defining an infinite plurality of modes) in order to maintain a certain predetermined frame rate (Abstract & figure 19). Wherein the frame rate of Deering is understood to correspond to the processing load as claimed.

The alteration of pixel position or the lack thereof between successive frames is viewed as the altering of image resolution or pixel count as the alternative interpretation of pixel position would be encompassed by any type of video or motion picture display. Deering provides a system capable of judging the rendering times in real time or alternatively in a partial "offline" (understood as preprocessing) mode and altering the rendering parameters instantly to maintain the minimum frame rate (ABS & figure 19).

With regard to a processing time that is "continuously less than said reference value during a predetermined number of frames" as the system of Deering is dynamic, it may change continuously with every frame or a sequence thereof dependent on a predicted load.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 2-4, 6-8, and 10-12 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Grossweiler III et al (US 6,400,372) teaches a selection method for determining the level of detail of a multi-resolution object.

Art Unit: 3714

Inman et al (US 5,982,373) teaches a dynamic enhancement/reduction of graphical image data resolution.
